

The implementation is quite different from how it was designed in the beginning, this is because of the existing methods and classes that can be reused to aid the functionality instead of creating new ones.

Instead of doing the breeding here, this function helps the dinosaur to find a target to breed with. the breedingAction is then returned if the target is found based on the requirements that they both have to be of the same kind but different genders

